THE POSTMASTER'S DAY OFF.

THE POSTMASTER'S DAY OFF.

A postmaster, not many miles from Billville, posted the following notice on his shutter recently "All parties expecting mail are hereby notified to git all that's comin' to 'em in advance—any time before next Thursday, that bein' the day we have app'inted to go huntin'—not havin' had a holiday from the Government since July 4, and the said Government seemin' to forget that bein' only human, we need rest and recreation occasional. There's some little mail here for the Joneses and the Tompines—but it don't amount to much, as it's all got 1-cent stamps on it. Should Have Been Reproved.

"I never knew a communication of his sort to be sent by a President to the governor of a State since the foundation of the Republic, and, for the President's sake and in his interest, I deeply regret and deplore the occur-rence," he declared. "It would have rence," he declared. "It would have been in extremely good taste for Governor Guld to have respectfully remitted this telegram to the President with a caution that he did not request the President's opinion in the case, nor the sanction of his high station, to the carrying out of the execution.

"In my judgment this involves a most serious proposition. It practically announces that the acts of State officials are subject to the approval or disapproval or displeasure of the Federal Government; it obliterates the line between the two; it announces to the governor of every State that if he is in doubt about the performance of some act confided to his supreme authority that he can appeal to the President for guidance."

The Set-to With Aldrich.

Taking up the President's methods of influencing Congress in regard to the railroad rate bill, the Senator drew a humorous picture of the contest between Senator Aldrich and the President. "The Senator from Rhode Island." he said, "time and time again went down beneath the ponderous blows of his opponent. But at length science began to tell. The President had changed his tactics so often that he became exhausted and appealed for help. One morning the Senator from Rhode Island appeared in this chamber with a radiant smile. The tournament was over. The

Greatest Show of Power

The Senator characterized the passage of the lock canal measure as the most wonderful exhibition of the President's power over Congress that has yet oc-

"The President had determined," he said, "that there was said, "that there was either to be a lock canal or that there should be no legislation upon the subject. The day the vote was taken this Chamber preseemed laden with some parcotic wafting its somniferous essence over this body. When the roll was called the clerk could hardly hear the responses upon the side of the lock canal, and as the answers came they came in whispered accents and with bated breath. The charm had done its work, the deadly vapor had benumbed our faculties and made us pliant slaves to the master will. Even the senior Senator from Ohio who, when his convictions are aroused, has often on this floor displayed the Nemenn lion's nerve, fell a victim to the magic power of the love charm that had been concocted at the laboratory of the White House."

In this and his other incisive criticisms of the President, the Senator from Maryland was eloquent and, at times, seemed laden with some parcotic waft-cisms of the President, the Senator from Maryland was cloquent and, at times, dramatic. But it was as nothing compared to the fire that characterized his attack on Roosevelt for refusing the appeal of Admiral Schley.

"The American bar, or that portion of the bar unacquainted with this proceeding," declared the Senator, "will hardly believe it until they read it, that the President conducted this appeal in utter disregard of the rights of Admiral Schley, ignoring every principle of common law and statutory procedure, and in violation at least of the spirit of the Constitution, which provides that in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall be confronted with the witnesses against him and have compulsory process for im and have compulsory proc btaining witnesses in his favor.

WESLEYAN DEFEATS CADETS. MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Jan. 31 .-

Wesleyan defeated Colgate at basket-ball by 29 to 25. Wesleyan took the lead early in the game, sweeping Col-gate from its feet, but the visiters play-ed a hard up hill game, and when the half ended Wesleyan had 16 to 14. In the second half Colgate tied the score, and the remainder of the game was a seesaw. In the last few minutes of the play, however, Wesleyan braced and won out.
